Nervous Prostration, Soprovalent, especially among women, results from overtaxing the system.
The assimilative organs becoming deranged, the blood grows weak and impovertshed, and hence "that tired feeling" of which many complain. For all such cases, there is no remedy equal to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Take no other.
"Some time ago I found my system Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Take no other.

"Some time ago I found my system entirely rin down. I had a feeling of constant fatigue and languer and very little ambition for any kind of effort. A friend advised me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I did with the best results. It has done me more good than all other medicines I have ever used."

— Frank Mellows, Chelsea, Mass.

"For months I was afflicted with nervous prostration, weakness, languer, general debility, and mental depression. By purifying the bleed with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I was completely cured."

gin to climb than we would feel a sensation of smothering. The way was so rugged that at times we almost despaired of reaching the top. We climbed over tremendous drifts of angular rocks, all broken and seamed, and piled up in confusion and disorder. The rocks were as large as houses, and there were great caves and dens beneath them, into which we were in constant peril of falling. To add to the danger, many of the rocks were covered with sleet and ice, and we could find no secure footing.
Where there were drifts of snow, we got along better, for in it we could set our feet. But, in the ruggedest parts, there was no snow, and we had to climb from rock to rock, always conscious that destruction would attend a false step.
Often one would climb on the shoulders of the other and reach a shelf in the rock, and then turn and draw the
